

Flying Star Feng Shui

4	9	2
3	5	7
8	1	6

FLYING Star Feng Shui (also known as Yun Hong Feng Shui or Nine Palaces Flying Star) is a traditional style of Feng Shui that the Chinese have practised for centuries.

Flying Star Feng Shui is based on the Lok Shu Magic Square (an ancient Chinese tool) and utilises mathematics, logic and specialised formulas to unlock the secrets of the patterns of energy flow along the time dimension.

Flying Star Feng Shui's time dimension is related to the relative position of associated stars and their positive or negative impact on temporal events.

Using this technique, one can determine the auspicious and inauspicious stars for every 20 years, annually, weekly, daily and even hourly.

By accurately determining the placement of the so-called "Flying Star", Feng Shui practitioners can identify the Water and Mountain stars that indicate the best directions for wealth and health for a given time frame.

The Lok Shu Magic Square is, in turn, based on the I-Ching (the Book Of Changes) interpretation of how various universal components change and interact.

While it is valuable, if challenging, to understand the theoretical roots of Flying Star Feng Shui, for now it is enough to remember that it concerns the time dimension and uses the I-Ching methods of interactive analysis to instruct us as to the condition of our homes and businesses.

□ In a fortnight: What the stars mean

Feng Shui
by Kerby Kuek
info@misterfengshui.com

Original Text Submitted

Flying Stars Theory –part 1 (week 7)

Flying Star Feng Shui (also known as Yun Hong Feng Shui or Nine Palaces Flying Star) is a traditional style of Feng Shui that the Chinese have practiced for centuries. Flying Star Feng Shui is based on Lok Shu Magic Square (an ancient Chinese tool) and utilizes mathematics, logic and specialized formulas to unlock the secrets of the patterns of energy flow along the time dimension.

Flying Star Feng Shui's time dimension is related to the relative position of associated stars and their positive or negative impact on temporal events. Using this technique, one can determine the auspicious and inauspicious stars for every twenty years, annually, weekly, daily and even hourly. By accurately determining the placement of the so-called "Flying Star", Feng Shui practitioners can identify the Water and Mountain stars that indicate the best directions for wealth and health for a given time frame.

The Lok Shu Magic Square is, in turn, based on the I-Ching's (the Book of Changes) interpretation of how various universal components change and interact. While it is valuable, if challenging, to understand the theoretical roots of Flying Star Feng Shui, for now it is enough to remember that it concerns the time dimension and uses the I-Ching's methods of interactive analysis to instruct us as to the condition of our homes and businesses.

By Kerby Kuek

info@misterfengshui.com