The Book of Tao by Laotze-Tao The Ching

Chapter 28-strong and feeble

He who knows his manhood's strength
Keeps feebleness like a female
Becoming the ravine of the world
Being the ravine of the world
He has kept his constant virtue
And return again to be pure as an innocent baby
He who knows what is pure or white
Keeps his humility
Becomes the model of the world
He has constant virtue to do nothing wrong
And return again to the original emptiness
He who is acquainted with honor and glory
Is advisable to keep his obscure position
Becomes the valley of the world
Being the valley of the world He has enough constant virtue
And returns to simplicity of life
Cutting the uncarved wood, it is used as tool or furniture
BY means of such simplicity and original nature the sage could become ministers
Therefore, the sage will not cut up

Ravine: being empty and receptive is a place where water from various sources flows in. This symbolizes a leader attracting people to follow him

Original Emptiness: refers to surrounding where force of energy is produced for creation of the universe

Cut up: meaning the sage keeps his simple, pure and true self, just like natural uncarved wood.

Chapter 29-Do not act against God's will

Those who wish to take the world as their own
Are impossible in my view
Because the world is God's sacred vessel
No one can keep it as his own
He who takes it suffers defeat
He who holds it loses it
Therefore: Something is going ahead
Something is following behind
Some blowing hot
Some blowing cold
Some being strong
Some being weak
Some may take things up
Some may take them down
So, the sage avoids excess, extravagance and arrogance

Chapter 30-Do not Proud of strong military Force

Those who apply the doctrine of Tao to help the ruler will oppose all conquest by military force
War being so destructive will as law of cause and effect bring harm to the maker
With the station of soldiers thorny bushes might grow thus affecting livelihood of farmers
After a great war, bad years will surely follow
Therefore a good general only applies force for the protection of peace for the people
A good general will not use force carry out invasion
After the war he does not think it an act of glory
Despite the effect he does not take pride in it
Because he considers the force so used is only a regrettable necessity
After the war he does not love violence
Things to be over-matured are to quicken decay and become old
Violence by use of force is against the nature of Tao
Being not in accord with Tao he must stop such bad ambition

Chapter 31-The way of using weapons

Sharp weapons are instruments of evil omen
They are hated by all creatures
Those who have Tao do not like to use them
The Superior man likes the left in civilian life
But on military application likes the right
Weapons are instruments of evil men
They are not weapons of the superior omen
On occasion of compulsory necessity, it should be used with calm restraint
Even in victory, he does not consider it a glory
And he who calls it glorious

Is the one who delights in killing?
He who delights killing
Will not be successful in his desire to rule the government
Things of good omen favor the left
Things of bad omen favor the right
IN the army the commander stands on the left
While the commander in chief stands on the right
It was said he was in charge if the rite of mourning
The killing of multitude should be mourned with tears and sorrow
A victory in battle should be looked upon as funereal rite

(The ancient Chinese believed the arrangement orientation –left being symbol of good omen while right being the symbol of bad omen)

(Tao dislikes war to settle problems as disputes are settled according to law of nature)

Chapter 32 The Best way to stop in time

Tao is absolute and nameless
Small as it is in its primordial simplicity (like a piece of uncarved wood)
It is inferior to nothing in the world
If a ruler could keep to it
All people would spontaneously submit themselves to him and live peacefully
The Heaven and Earth being in accord
The sweet dew would fall down
According to nature without the command of men
With the arising of civilization all names and systems are given by men
Therefore men must know to stop in time and begin to learn the practice of Tao in order to avoid danger
Tao is ever present and surrounding the whole universe, just like streams and rivers all running into seas and ocean.

You are a kind-hearted, compassionate and emotional (deep inside) person. In addition, it is ok to cry when you needed and it is unnecessary to hide away (in order not to show your weakness to others)!

You are rather headstrong with your principles, like I mentioned your ideas and thoughts are good and in your favor, however sometimes a good leader must learn to let others have your ideas as theirs! This will create win-win scenario. Relax and take time to present your ideas and make decision, do not rush to see results but do not delay too much.

11. Words to Ponder!

Make sure to use your favorable elements to harness the kind energies and avoid the unfavorable ones that generate ‘unkind energies’. If you find it hard to get solutions, go to your favorable locations and the answers might appear. Wear your favorable colors for important occasions. Nothing is more important than hard work and integrity. Work with your support and protector to create synergy. Ensure you treat your life well, and remember to enjoy the journey of life, as different stages of life offer different tastes! We come to this world naked and leave naked as well. Share if you can afford and make if you have the effort! Cherish friendships and family members, because things are ‘arranged’ in accordance to our aura energies. Having said that we are part of abundances, and with the right attitude, right energies and above all right timing, we can achieve maximum results! Moreover, with effort and no regrets!
