FENG SHUI

Is there a hill/mountain near your house (growing or dying)?

A house is said to have good support when there is a hill or mountain behind it. This protects the house from being harmed by gusty wind or surprise attacks from an unguarded rear. It is important to note that in ancient China, wild animal attacks were normal incidents. Lacking this support is said to generate 'unkind' energies that are believed to have impact on the inhabitants' health. Having the good support of a mountain or hill is defined as 'growing' or 'lively', particularly with trees.

The ancient Chinese believed the Dragon is the symbol of a mountain, and trees were hairs to protect the dragon from being sick; therefore, a good mountain will generate a 'kind' cosmic breath for inhabitants in the vicinity. In today's modern context, building an artificial hill or artificial mountain at the rear will serve the purpose. Likewise, an old building is said to generate 'unkind' energies that radiate toward nearby inhabitants. If you do not have anything at the rear of your house, think of a nice artificial hill or artificial mountain next time you decorate your house, or simply place 8 white stones to strengthen the support elements.

Take a minute to enlighten yourself with the following observation and see if it applies to your country as well. In ancient China, warriors and heroes were mostly born in the inland areas surrounded by good mountains. In fact, even now, Buddhist monks and Taoist practitioners like to meditate in the mountains, to enhance their search for longevity and enhance their health. You might say there is nothing superstitious nor physiologically remarkable about this; it is just common sense.

The Important of Auspicious Dates

A Good Beginning is Half Done-according to Ancient Chinese

Let the Auspicious Energy of Yang occasion usher in the world of abundance. Just as the space in which we live and work affects our lives and business ventures, so too do the dates and times at which we do things.

Many of the events and activities, which we undertake are either routine, or of limited importance. Occasionally, however, we undertake something of great personal significance, be it getting married, selling our old house, moving into a new apartment, starting a new business venture, commencing building work, signing a contract or other significant events.

Auspicious or favorable dates can be calculated in many ways. One popular Chinese method, known as Kei Mun Tung Kap (or Chinese Tung Seng), uses the year as the control agent. However, the most complex method of all - those based on the Ba Zi - is what we will use to provide you with most personal tailor-made date(s) calculation.

For example, we will identify the most auspicious days for getting married, as well as unfavorable days, which must be avoided at all costs. For those intending to find the best dates for job interviews, residential moves or renovations, or those looking for the best baby arrival date, please refer to our services column for more details.

Whilst many of the calculations are of a general nature, there are also specific calculations for certain kinds of activity, which is why we also need details of the event. Just as with Feng Shui, each calculation yields useful information about the whole picture, but the more in-depth the calculations the better the results in terms of charting powerful influences.

Analyzing Techniques:

Current Period is 8 and the auspicious stars are 8, 9 and 1 while the inauspicious stars are 7, 6 and 5.

Good Mountain star (existing period star) must be found in mountain sector while Good Water star (existing period star) must be found in water sector to form an auspicious house setting.

Stars 1, 3, 6 and 8 are Yang Stars, while 2, 4, 5 and 7 are Yin stars. Pure Yang stars will result in 'strong and bad mannered lady', while Pure Yin stars will hurt male that results in widow.

The combination of stars in each box might create the following effects but only serve as an indicator because other elements and influences should take into consideration:.....

Colors

Colors do affect Feng Shui in many ways. If you belong to this so called Cold Life Person, born in between August 8th to March 5th, then your favorite colors are green, navy green, purple, red, pink, and orange. This method by manipulating the 5 elements was popularized by Master So in the early nineties. Ideally, in our daily activities, we should use such colors for wardrobes, house curtain, sofas and wallpapers. However, the rule of thumb is such that your house main door, wallpapers or bedrooms wall should avoid using dark red color. This can be explained by the fact that dark red consist of too much yang energies.
