TOPOGRAPHY-the antenna concept exists more than 4,000 years ago

Traditional Feng Shui had placed great emphasis on landform or topography. Such creation is the result of the formation of hard landforms that transform into different 'shapes' and 'forms'. The process of such formation requires time and energy and as a result different shapes and forms one-way or the other posses certain kind or unkind energy. The radiation of such subtle energy will depend upon time period and surrounding factors. Ancient Chinese long believed that a tip of a mountain (protruding) would receive information from the sky, as a result of cosmic changes, and reflect such energy outwards. So you can see that the concept of antenna already exist more than 4,000 years ago. Below are some examples of traditional findings on different types of landforms and its implications. It is for reference only since most are either obsolete or outdated.
